Local Woman Seeking Damages As Result of Auto Accident in 1947

Margaret Dixon of 15 LaBarge Street, is suing the state for $20,000 because the driver of a state high-way department sand truck allegedly missed sanding a slippery spot on Route 4 and then stopped his truck in the road to "talk to several girls." Damages are sought as the result of an accident Feb. 16, 1947, about two miles north of Fort Ann. She charges that she was driving north on Route 4 and that for the first two miles the highway was well sanded. As she rounded a turr in the road and started down a hill the sand stopped and she saw the sand truck "stopped on the hill so as to make an additional hazard. She further alleges the driver had stopped at that point to "talk to
