A BRUTAL ASSAULT ON SECOND STREET

William Carlin Attacked at a Late Hour Last Night and Roughly Handled by Two Young Men.

William Carlin, a tanner, residing on Woodside avenue, was brutally assaulted about 11:30 last night on Second street, a short distance from Broad street, and the men who are suspected of committing the crime were captured after some very good work on the part of Officer Louis Sperber and Captain Johnson.

Carlin was in Behlen's saloon at the corner of Orchard and West First streets last night and Edward and Charles Geiss were in the saloon at the same time. The three men were drinking and an altercation arose in which the Geiss boys were aggressive. The trouble was stopped by the bartender and about 11:30 the Geiss boys left the saloon and shortly afterwards Carlin started home. He went up Broad street and turned on Second street and had gone but a short distance when two men suddenly jumped in front of him, and that is the last that he remembers of what happened. The noise of the following fight aroused some of the neighbors, however, and they heard somebody say "get off of him." Some of the men left the house and as they did so saw two men running along Second street in a westerly direction. On the sidewalk just beyond Alden Henry's house was Carlin, and near him was a big pool of blood. The men questioned Carlin, but he was confused and in the excitement he wandered away. Being in a dazed condition he went back to Broad street and down that thoroughfare and wound up at Behlen's saloon. The bartender saw that he was covered with blood, and started him on the right direction for home, where he could get care. On the right side of his head were two cuts, on the back of his head a cut, his left eye was badly bruised, his forehead badly scratched, the left ear puffed in bad shape and several teeth were loosened. He was also bruised in other ways and his clothing was covered with blood.

When the men who were aroused found that an assault had been committed they telephoned to the police, and Captain Johnson and Officer Louis Sperber immediately responded.

When they arrived on Second street, Captain Johnson and the officers started a search for the men who struck him. They went to Third street and while walking westerly along that street, Officer Sperber, who was ahead, saw two men on a stoop at the corner of Third street and Woodside avenue. As soon as the men saw him they started on a run, and the officer and Captain Johnson went after them. The men jumped from the stoop and turned down Woodside street, and when Sperber reached the corner they had disappeared. Sperber started for a short time and not hearing any sounds concluded to make an investigation. He went around to the rear door of the basement of the house where he had seen the men and found that the door had just been closed. He knocked once and then opened the door. As he entered the room, he saw Charles and Edward Geiss, and asked them what they had been doing. They told him that it was none of his business and they had not been doing anything, and as they did so the officer saw the hat of one of the boys and noticed that it was covered with spots of blood and remarked that it didn't look as though they had been doing anything. At the same time it was noticed that there was blood on the clothes and hands of the young men.

Both boys were inclined to be impudent and asked the officer what he was going to do about it any way. As a response the officer opened the door and whistled and Captain Johnson soon came to the house. One of the boys then objected to having the handcuffs placed on his wrist and after a short struggle Officer Sperber subdued the young man and shackled him. Both boys claimed that they knew nothing of the assault and said they found Carlin on the sidewalk and helped him along and in so doing got blood on their hands and clothes. They were placed in the station house and later in the night warrants charging them with assault in the second degree were sworn out on Carlin's complaint.

Both young men were inclined to be talkative while the officers were taking them to the station house and made various kinds of threats of how they would make people prove many things.

After placing the prisoners in the station house the officers found Carlin at his home and took him to Dr. Palmer's office, where his cuts were sewn up and the other wounds dressed.

This morning the Geiss boys were arranged before Acting Recorder Haviland and both asked for counsel before pleading. Their bases were then adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

This afternoon the prisoners' asked

SLEUTHS A TROCHA

About Mrs. O'Brien Counsel Obtains Postponement of Divorce Suit on Plea That He Could Not See Her.

To-day's New York Herald refers as follows to the matrimonial troubles of Mrs. Abbie O'Brien, wife of former Sheriff O'Brien of New York, formerly Miss Abby Cook of this city:

Robert L. Turk, pleading inability to visit his client, Mrs. Abbie O'Brien, wife of former Sheriff James O'Brien, and also a plea of the impossibility of her appearance in court, yesterday succeeded in having the trial of the suit for divorce against her postponed until Monday by Judge Scott.

Abraham H. Hummel, in behalf of the former sheriff, asserted that Mrs. O'Brien has been in a nervous condition ever since the suit was brought, and had never been ready for trial. Mr. Turk declared it was a nervous condition of the defendant that kept him from seeing his client, and that her nervousness was due to attendance upon a child who was ill.

Mr. O'Brien is sixty-three years old, and Mrs. O'Brien, who is his second wife, is about forty. Although involved in domestic legal disputes for about two years, they still live in the same house, occupying separate apartments. Mrs. O'Brien sued her husband for separation on the ground of abandonment and non-support, but the case was dismissed. Another action was then brought, Mr. O'Brien making numerous charges of misconduct against his wife, which she denies, and in a counter suit accuses her husband of improprieties with different women. There are eighteen questions for the jury to decide.

When Judge Scott yesterday was shown an affidavit by a physician as to the illness of Mrs. O'Brien's child, he said he would not delay the trial beyond Monday under any circumstances.
