Slipping up on a Bargain

Some bargains are like ice—they are exceedingly slippery. It isn't pleasant to discover that, like the article purchased, you have also been sold. There's a way of avoiding that kind of an experience when you buy clothing: go where you will be told the truth and nothing but the truth. There isn't any reason why we should misrepresent our $10 suits. When we tell you just what they are, neither more nor less, we give them the best recommendation they can possibly have. It will pay you to see our immense display. We do not hesitate to say it's the largest here. G. A. R. Suits, with extra buttons, $8 and $10.

Mrs. Mary B. Brundige died yesterday at her home in Riceville, aged 61 years.
Funeral at 2 p. m. Wednesday.
The Red Men met last evening and discussed the feasibility of holding a field day. No definite arrangements were made.

It is stated that several other trees in the neighborhood of the one which blew down yesterday on Fulton street, are entirely rotten at the roots and should be cut down.

A May day festival will be given under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Saturday evening. The place has not yet been decided upon, but will probably be in the Bauder block.

A communication signed "Kingsboro," complaining of the alleged negligence of city officials in the treatment of people in the north end of the city, will have a place in these columns to-morrow.

A handsome black walnut desk for the city chamberlain's office arrived to-day.
Chamberlain Davis feels almost as proud of it as he does of some of the snap-shots he has made with his camera lately.

The base ball game between the Albany and Troy clubs, which was to have been played on the Johnstown fair grounds yesterday, failed to materialize, doubtless owing to the bad weather.

Several witnesses were sworn before Recorder Eggleston this morning in regard to Louis Vines, the South Main street restaurant keeper, who is suspected of selling liquor without a license.

Mrs. Davis of Utica will address the Fulton County Teachers' Association at Northville Saturday, on "Scientific temperance teaching." A special train will leave Johnstown at 8:30 a. m. and this city at 8:45 o'clock.

Miss Olof Krarer lectures at the First Presbyterian church this evening, on "Greenland; or Life in the frozen north." Miss Krarer is a native Esquimaux woman, and wherever she has appeared her lectures have given unqualified pleasure.

A hearing in the Kennedy vs. Wood case was had this morning at the law office of Spencer & Banker. H. E. Smith was the referee. Baker & Burton appeared for Wood and Spencer & Banker for Kennedy. The case was adjournd for two weeks, after taking evidence.

A would-be speculator in tickets for the "The Old Homestead," was in this city yesterday and arranged for the sale of tickets at Daily's cigar store. Supposing him to be an authorized agent for the Grand opera house, Mr. Daily readily consented, and placed a placard in his window announcing the sale of seats.
But the Johnstown speculator had reckoned without his host, or, more plainly, had neglected to consult Manager Ball about his little arrangement, and was unable to secure tickets for scalping purposes. So the speculator sent in his regrets this morning, and the placard is no longer seen at the cigar store.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hull gave a musicale to a number of friends, at their pleasant home on Forest street, last evening. Instrumental and vocal music were rendered in a highly satisfactory manner until a late hour. Among the pretty selections rendered were tenor solos by Messrs. Smith and Slead. Mr.
William Patten also sang several fine selections from "Dorothy," which were roundly encored. "I'll Not Tell Her Name," by Mr. Thomas Edwards, met with justly merited applause. Several instrumental duets by Misses Harriet Van Gorden and Helen Bushby were appreciated very much. Refreshments were served and all present enjoyed the evening thoroughly, and voted Mr. and Mrs. Hull model entertainers.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Simon Dence was taken in by Officer Grandy for intoxication last night. The recorder sentenced him to pay a fine of $4 or go to jail for ten days.
Elmer Lewis, a mason, took in too much spirits last night and Officer Grandy gave him a bed in the station house.
The recorder taxed Elmer $5 for his lodging.

A SMALL STRIKE.A Few of D. B. Judson's Machine Operatives Quit Work.

The wax thread and oversitch machine hands at D. B. Judson's factory sent work to the office Friday afternoon, that if they were not paid that day they would quit work. Mr. Judson had been absent from the city, attending the funeral of Nathan Littauer, which accounted for a delay in paying the hands.
Mr. Judson was not at the office, and the bookkeeper in charge was not prepared to satisfy the men, so they quit.
The next day Mr. Judson sent them their money and Monday the overstretchers returned to work, but the wax-threaders came with a demand for an increase in the price paid for their work, and failing to get it, again refused to work.

One of the employees who went out with the strikers was seen this morning.
He claimed that when pay day came the men who worked by the piece were subjected to long and tedious waits. If they were through at 4 p. m., or later, they had to wait until 6 o'clock for their money. Last Friday one of the men went to the office, it being the 15th, pay day, and asked if they intended to pay off. The bookkeeper informed them that they did not intend to do so until the next day. The man told him the boys did not like that way and wanted the money when due. The employee claimed he notified him in time to get the money from the bank. He also claimed that the bookkeeper told him to go to—and that if he were the boss he would not be dictated to; that they could get plenty of men to fill their places; in fact they could go now. "You can tell them I said so." The man said: "After we quit, we made up our mind to ask for the extra four cents more, the same as other shops were paying, as they are always one cut below the others and the Kingsboro shops are regulated by the Judson shop. He did offer to compromise with us and give us two cents more.
We did intend to go back, but would not, then, until we received more pay. It was the money part we were after".
The overstretchers did go back to work, as their grievance was of another nature, aside from the price of work.

In an interview with Mr. Judson, that gentleman said that the striking waxthreaders numbered about sixteen or eighteen, and when their demand was made for higher pay, he told them that if they had come to him in a different way and stated their grievance he would have investigated the matter, and paid them more if other manufacturers were doing so. But he "did not want to be threatened or dictated to by strikers," and refused to treat with them. He considered the original cause of the strike inconsistent, and asked the men if, at some time, he had not paid every one of them money before it was due, and they acknowledged that he had done so. The men were satisfied with their pay last year, and were receiving the same now.
"How do the men's wages average?" asked the reporter.
"When work is brisk," replied Mr.
Judson, "some of the men earn from $3 to $4 per day. Last month one man earned $72 and another $80."

Four new hands were put on to-day at the factory, and Mr. Judson seems to apprehend no trouble about filling the places of the striking operatives.

A HORSE THIEF CAPTURED.He Drives from Washington County and Burrows a Wagon on the Way.

Officer Sperber captured a young mulatto yesterday afternoon on suspicion of being a horse thief. The bird had been in the cage but a short time when the police were convinced that they made no mistake in arresting the young man. On Saturday evening a young mulatto, apparently about twenty years of age, and giving his name as George Grant, drove into town with a bay mare and road cart. He put the rig in Van Vranken's livery and Sunday took it out three or four times, after having "banged" the tail of the animal. On Monday he sold the road cart to Thomas Baldwin for $3. In the meantime inquiry reached here from Broadalbin about the turnout.
Upon this inquiry Officer Sperber took Grant into custody, and in a short time a constable and a farmer living near Cranberry Creek came to this city. The farmer said that Grant came along to his place Saturday, driving the horse without a wagon. He said that his wagon was broken between Batcheller-ville and the Fish House and he wanted to borrow the road cart to finish his journey, which was only a few miles further on. The farmer let him have the cart and that was the last seen of him. When interviewed by Chief Taylor, Grant said he had hired the turnout from D. S. Stroud, a hotel and liveryman of Cambridge, Washington county.
The chief wired Mr. Stroud, asking him if he had let the rig to Grant, and while awaiting an answer received another telegram as follows:

Arrest Mulatto, named George Foster, alias George Grant. Stole from Cambridge light bay mare, white hind foot, no shoes behind. Tips on forward feet; springhalt. Also from Greenwich, a new carriage, wine-colored gear, black body, made by Miller & Ferris.

Shortly after receiving the above, the chief was in receipt of the following from Mr. Stroud, in answer to his telegram:
"No; hold the man; he stole it." Grant was kept at the station house all night, awaiting the arrival of a Washington county officer, who took him to Cambridge this afternoon.

Before being taken away Foster made a statement in which he showed a spirit of trade that would indicate that he had received his training from a shrewd Yankee. He said that when he reached Bald mountain he traded the new wagon with which he left Cambridge for an old horse and wagon and $5. He led the old horse a few miles and sold it for $5. He kept on his way until the old wagon broke, when he walked, driving the horse until he reached Farmer Gifford, from whom he borrowed the road cart.

Foster was taken back to Cambridge by Officer Newcomb Lane. The wagon was stolen from Frank Miller of Greenwich, who was represented here by Officer Hiram Tefft. The officers and Mr.
Stroud, who was also here, had a considerable discussion as to just who the prisoner belonged to, but it was finally decided to allow Officer Lane to have him and to take him back over the route he came, so that Miller's wagon could be recovered.

Talent Appreciated.

Hostess to the famous amateur clo-thesier—Dearest friend, we have such a favor to ask! To-morrow evening a bitter old uncle of ours is coming, and we shall have to hear his long-winded talk and sour criticisms. My daughters are in despair—but my husband says you can help us.

Elucitatorist—Ah! Then am I to participate in entertaining him?
Hostess—Oh, no, not that—but give him some of your recitations and drive him away.—Ellegende Blacketer.

Aunt (who has rather a large nose) —You should not use such expressions, my dear.

Little Boy (hastily correcting himself)—I mean, aunty, it's as plain as a gilded cat.—Good News.

A Trip to the Bargain Counter.
He (facetiously)—So you are going abroad. Do you expect to marry a count or a baron?

She (seriously)—It depends on their relative values. Papa has limited me to a certain sum, you know.—Munsey's Weekly.

Cupid on the Rack.

He (catching at a straw)—So you do think it is at least possible that I could make you happy?

She—Yes—if I were going to marry for spite, you know.—Life.
