

J. R. Newman & Sons.

IN STYLE.

You've seen the man who always looks as though he had just stepped out of a fashion plate! He is so fastidious that he goes to one extreme, while the man who always looks as though he had slept in an ash barrel goes to the other. There is something to be said in favor of the man who is a trifle too particular, but there is a happy medium in dress as in everything else, and it is a mistake to go too far beyond it. You will just about strike this happy medium if you purchase one of our spring suits and spring overcoats. They are the acme of the tailor's art, being correct in shape and fabric. $8.00 to $25.00. Some cheaper.

Among the applicants for admission to the bar, examined at Albany yesterday, were Walter Canaday and David E. Stewart of this city.

The Buffalo-Albany base ball game announced to take place on the Johnstown fair grounds is off, owing to the fact that the Buffalo team is badly crippled.

Miss Louise Caldwell, who underwent an operation for the removal of a tumor, in Albany, died at 9 o'clock this morning of heart failure. The remains were brought here this afternoon.

The Y. W. C. T. U. met last evening at 118 South Main street. Enough members were present to insure a close in the Demarest prize contest. They will learn the selections and the medal will be awarded to the best speaker of the several selections. Sixteen books were sent for. The society have organized a reading circle and will take up a special course. They will meet at the same place next Thursday evening.

A young man whose name it is unnecessary to mention, walked into our sanctum this morning and asked: "Has my marriage notice been sent in?" The matrimonial editor answered with his usual courtesy that it had not. "Well," said the young man, "if anybody brings it in, please don't publish it." The wedding was to have taken place last night, but the young man says it is off for the present.

The hotel at Sacandaga Park will be opened about the 20th of June under the management of L. W. Kelly of Boston, an old hotel man, who will run the house in a first-class manner and in every way which a hotel of its size and beauty deserves. The F. J. & G. R. R. company are to be congratulated on securing such an excellent person as Mr. Kelly to serve the many people who will visit this house this season. The work of furnishing the house is to be started at once. A number of Mr. Kelly's Boston friends will no doubt secure rooms at the hotel for the season.

An Extensive Department.—Since J. R. Newman & Sons have enlarged their store they have added an extensive Trunk and Bag Department and show a very choice assortment, no doubt the largest in the city.

THE OTHER SIDE OF IT.

To the Daily Leader: The card published in your paper, signed Asahel Cadman, stating that I, his wife, have refused to live with him and forbidding all persons trusting or harboring me on his account, is untrue and does me great injustice. I have never refused to live with my husband. I have been contemplating a short visit with relatives of mine at Syracuse, and this is the only foundation for the publication of his card.

MRS. ESTHER M. CADMAN.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

To the Members of the Fremont Street M. E. church:

DEAR FRIENDS—Next Sunday will be the sixteenth anniversary of the organization of our church as a separate society. It would not be proper to allow the occasion to pass without some recognition. Last year our services were elaborate and extensive; this year we need not have so full a programme. I propose a roll call of the members of the church and to give some facts and make some remarks in harmony with the event. I trust every member will, so far as possible, make an effort to be present, and respond to the roll call. It is to be hoped that every one of the charter members now living and able to reach the church will do so. Let us have some enthusiasm and pride in this service and it will be profitable. Let us also remember what God has done for us and respond cheerfully to this call. Yours very truly,

THOS. G. THOMPSON, Pastor.

M'ELVENY IN COURT.

He Examines the Tools and Sarcnettes stolen from the Jewelry Store.

The trial of Thomas McElveny, charged with complicity in the burglary of A. D. Norton's jewelry store, continues to excite considerable interest. The counsel for the defendant are fighting desperately for their client and their cross-examinations are thorough and tedious. McElveny, whose nervousness is very evident, consults frequently with the counsel and occasionally offers suggestions. Yesterday afternoon when the tools which were found in Mr. Norton's store, and which were supposed to have been used in breaking open the safe, were shown, McElveny displayed a lively interest and examined the brace and twist bit critically, all the time wearing a sarcastic smile upon his face.

Dr. J. Spencer Phillips of this city, who was on the stand when the DAILY LEADER'S report closed yesterday, testified that he saw a man who resembled McElveny between 4 and 5 o'clock on the morning of the burglary. He also saw him at Johnstown on a train and at the Fonda depot, where the man took a west-bound train. He could not say, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that the prisoner was the man.

Officer Fred Sperber testified to seeing two men go down the railroad track early that morning, carrying something between them, but could not identify the men.

Harvey Hathaway and Duncan McIntyre, boys of Perth, testified to the finding of the jewelry in the Tyler woods near Perth, their testimony being the same as given in the Donovan trial.

Lorenzo Dorn, an employe of A. D. Norton, confirmed the testimony of John Brostrum as to the condition of the store the night before and the morning after the burglary. The tools found in the store were offered in evidence, and the witness believed they were the same. On cross-examination Mr. Dorn testified as to the possibility of the drill being sufficient to cause the hole found in the safe; he said that it was.

John McIntyre testified to the finding of the jewelry in the Perth woods and its return to Mr. Norton.

James Jackson, state detective, saw the prisoner at Sing Sing; he was convicted under the name of Thomas Welch in 1877. He was also brought there January 9, 1889; witness took him from Sing Sing to Clinton prison.

The first witness, Henry Fuller, swore he saw the prisoner enter Carnrack's place the day before the robbery; saw him sitting inside with Carnrack and a woman; would not swear beyond the possibility of a doubt that prisoner was the man.

Geo. Roberts of Johnstown saw a white horse and buckboard wagon in Tyler's woods morning after robbery about 7 o'clock.

Samuel Roberts corroborated the above of Geo. Roberts. Saw basket in wagon. Walter N. Rippton, the next witness, testified substantially as he did on the Donovan trial, regarding the visitor at his store to look at packing cases.

Charles Carnrack swore that the prisoner was in his place on the day before the burglary, in company with a woman named Maud Howard. The couple took a room and Carnrack did not see them again until the following morning, when McElveny told Carnrack that he was going to breakfast at the Alvord house. McElveny wore a silk hat and glasses. The witness said he could swear beyond the possibility of a doubt that the prisoner was the same man. He was subjected to a rigid cross-examination and his character shown up in lurid colors.

The fair Maud took the stand, and swore that she met the prisoner in Fonda, flirted with him, accompanied him to Gloversville, and spent the night with him at Carnrack's. They went to Carnrack's at ten o'clock at night, and McElveny did not leave there until 5:35 in the morning. Some of the testimony given by the last two witnesses was too "spicy" for publication.

After hearing the testimony of Maud Howard, the court took a recess until this afternoon. At 1:30 p. m. Chas. Carnrack was recalled and cross-examined by Lawyer Keene in regard to visiting Maud Howard at Amsterdam yesterday. Edward Shannon swore that McElveny resembled one of the men he saw at Harrison street crossing, the morning after the burglary with two other men. John Kling of Perth, the day before the robbery saw James Donagan near his house with the gray horse. Maud Howard was recalled and examined as to how she came from Amsterdam to attend this trial, and was on the stand when our report for to-day closed.

HONORING A GUEST.

Miss Nellie Kingsley gave a reception last evening at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. R. A. Avery, on Bleeker street, to about thirty of her friends, in honor of Miss Nellie Farley of Fort Plain. The occasion was a most enjoyable one. Frank Talbot and Miss Farley favored the guests with songs and Miss Madge Heacock with instrumental music. The time was pleasantly passed in social enjoyment.

SENSATION IN COURT.

A NEW WITNESS APPEARS IN IRONS, And Says He was one of the Norton Burglars, and that McElveny had a Hand in it.

At a quarter to 4 this afternoon a sensation was created in court by the arrival of a prisoner handcuffed to an officer. The man was put on the stand and swore that his name was Thomas Jones and that he had been confined in Auburn prison. He testified that he was one of the men who robbed Norton's store on the night of June 10, last; that the job was put up by a man named Mason, and that at 11:30 o'clock on the night mentioned, he (Jones) and Mason entered the store and Mason cracked the safe, while McElveny was left on guard outside to give signals in case of danger.

Counsel for the defense are hauling the new witness over the coals in lively style.

PLEASING WORDS.

The Nashua, N. H., Daily Gazette, has the following, which will interest Gloversville readers:

Rev. C. W. Rowley, the newly appointed pastor of the Methodist church, was greeted yesterday morning by a well filled house. His remarks were based upon the appointment of Paul as an ambassador for Christ and his address made a most favorable impression. He is a clear thinker, good logician and expresses himself most forcibly. He has a clear voice and good delivery. In closing he said he came to the Main Street church determined to give the best of his spiritual, physical and mental forces, and he asked the members of the church and congregation to take him into their hearts and make his acquaintance at once, that no time might be lost in organizing the working forces of the church. He urged the people to stop him on the street or anywhere they might see him, and in this way speed the ripening of acquaintanceship. He said God had given him 500 souls during the past three years and his prayer was that in Nashua he might average 100 a year, to which end he asked the prayers and co-operation of the church.
